Police Stay Out; Russians in N.Y. Get U.S. Guards

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Dipiomatic missions of the Soviet Union and other nations were under federal guard today as New York's wildcat policemen's strike broadened to include some sobway

President Nixon vesterday sent about 75 members of the Federal Executive Protective Service from Washington to provide security guards for foreign missions, including the Soviet United Nations mission, threatened by militant Jews.

Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy, though assuring that assential services were being maintained for the present by detectives, uniformed officers and probationary patrolmen, never-theless warned that this could last only a few more days. "Men just cannot continue to work 12-hour tours of duty without days off." Mr. Murphy told newsmen yesterday on the wilkout's third day.

Mayor John V. Lindsay denounced the wildcat strike as "an stlack on the people of this city and on the rule of law itself."

[Friday Supreme Court Justice Samuel M. Gold issued a temporary injunction against the strike—termed "job action" by the police, who are barred from striking by state law. [The injunction, due for hearing tomorrow, was posted in all police stations.

(The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association—the policeman's union—is urging the men to go back to work, pinning its hopes on court action to win a pay raise for its members.)

Arrests were ranging about one-third of a normal weekend tally, authorities reported, with only 15 detentions showing on police biotters against an average of 40. The New York National Guard announced today that it has a contingency plan if its men are called upon to take up police duties in the event the strike drags on, but would not say just what the plan invoives. The policemen's "joh action," as it is called, followed a similar slowdown early this month by the city's firemen. The firefighters returned to full duty, however, after a court order was issued, Yesterday, garbagemen's union leader John DeLury announced that he will set a date tomorrow for a slowdown hy his 11,000 canitation men unless the city stops "dragging its feet" on contract oegotlations. All three unions are negotiating new contracts

Mayor Lindsay's negotiators today broadened the strike-plagued city's wage offer to firemen and sanitation men to provide a 17.4perceot salary increase over three years, contingent on reforms and increased efficiency. City officials said the higher wages (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

U.S. Planes Attack Red SAM Sites

Rockets Are Fired At 3 Installations

SAIGON, Jan. 17 (AP).-U. S. fighter-bombers renewed their at-tacks Friday against a growing surface-to-air-missile threat inside North Vietnam. Meanwhile, nine Americans were killed and 39 wounded in ground action in South Vietnam, military spokesmen said resterday.

The attacks Friday against three North Vietnamese missile sites were the most reported since the major raids of last Nov. 21-22. The results were not known. The American ground casualties were the heaviest in a 24-hour

They were sustained in sharp fighting along the Demilitarized one and in an area 32 miles east of Saigon, and in two booby-trap explosions and the related loss of a helicopter that was shot down while trying to evacuate casual-ties from one of the explosions. Against the Community

New York is not unfamiliar with the wry title "strike city." It has seen its newspapers closed down, its transit system grind to a halt students stay out of classes and teachers stay away from students, garbage plied high in the streets and taxis vanishing from them telephone wires cut by disgruntled repairmen and noisy demonstrators of all kinds parading in every public place. Firemen have taken "job action"—that euphemism for inaction-and now the policemen are doing the same.

New York City is not unique among metropolitan centers in being the target of strikes. And to its credit, let it be said that complex agglomeration of assorted millions, that Baghdad-on-the-Hudson, whose feet shuffle through rubbishy streets but whose head is reaching ever higher toward the clouds, bears its tribulations well. With so many overt signs of institutional dissolution, some strange sense of community keeps New York in its characteristic restless, fruitful motion.

But the overt signs, here as elsewhere in an urbanized world, are deeply troubling. When radicals who despise the community as it exists plant bombs to try to break it up, that is revolution. But when the uniformed forces of the community, members of it (and by no means the least, economically), paid by it, and bound by oath to serve it, defy their obligations in their own presumed interests, something is gravely wrong. The New York police, for example, are not only defying court orders, but their "job action" itself is directed against a court decision affecting their pay.

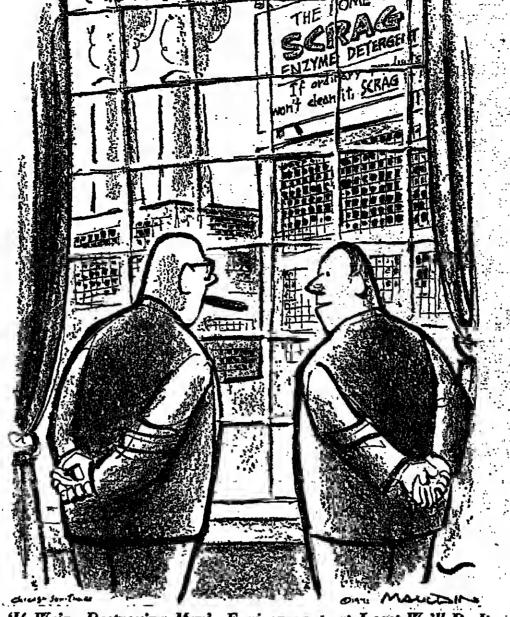

The police situation, like that in every strike situation, is complex. So is that of whatever considerations of relative pay. injured pride, precedents in other strikes, caused the police mutiny, the fact is that a very basic element of community cohesiveness was sacrificed to the will of a group. The police inaction may differ from other strikes only in degree, but that degree registers a high-water mark in a rising tide of social discontent.

This discontent, to the extent that the police express it, seems to be less a matter of seeking objective goals than of attempting to find some new, workable units of human solidarity within the vast and formless mass that constitutes the overgrown political divisions of today's urban life, The instinct for cooperation which holds New York together in times of troubles does not affect policemen-or teachers, or sanitation workers, or transit workers, or telephone repairmen, or students-when their group interests seem to be at stake.

It is too remote a concept; its visible representatives, whether the mayor or the courts, the City Council or public opinion. carry less weight than the union representative—the tribal chief—or those who want to represent the union.

It is the most dangerous paradox of modern society that the more closely its elements are bound together, the more they resent their bonds; the more humans become dependent on their fellows, the more they seek to assert independence. No systemwhether the full-fledged welfare states of Britain and Uruguay, the Socialist states of Poland and Czechoslovakia, the New Deal capitalism of the United States and Canada, the quasi-Fascism of Spain—has found a way ont of this dilemma. Yet it is a problem that is as urgent as the pollution of the the city which pays the policemen. But environment, and even more fundamental.

Britain's South African Dilemma

Britain is eaught in a bind between scruples and politics another bind one should say, and a bind all too familiar to the United States. The immediate issue is whether to sell South Africa arms, Prime Minister Heath unquestionably abhors apartheid and would not wish to support it. But for the money and the chance of heading off the Soviet Navy in the Indian Ocean and-its is said -of establishing his own leadership credibility, he evidently intends to sell frigates. reconnaissance planes and the like for use in patrolling strategic sea lanes.

The issue has been moved to the front burner at the current Commonwealth meeting in Singapore. The Commonwealth, of course, is a voluntarily multiracial association of Britain and some 30 of its former colonies, most of them seutely sensitive, for both moral and political reasons, to apartheld and therefore strongly opposed w arms deal with Johannesburg. That Mr. Heath would even consider such a deal has severely frayed the ties of a Commonwealth which has served its members well; consummation of the deal could well break those

For an American, it is a relatively simple matter to say that Britain's policy should he shaped by the self-evident horror of apartheid, or, contrarily, by the strategic necessity of facing off the Soviet fleet in the Indian Ocean. As it happens, the Nixon administration, which has just decided to set up a "communications facility," on Britishowned Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean. is discreetly encouraging the latter view. And, indeed, there is a certain logic to this

South Africa may not have been precisely the country the President had in mind when he called upon other states to take more of their own defense responsibilities into their own hands. But the unavoidable implication of such a doctrine is that, once a given state harkens to it, the United States can hardly claim it meant the doctrine to apply only to those governments whose domestic policies Washington approves. Years ago Britain was forced by diminishing resources into a "Nixon doctrine" of its own, so it is in even less of a position than the United States to back off from South Afreia

The compromise which Mr. Heath seems to be assembling is to make the arms deal (after the Commonwealth Conference) but to call it a limited one involving arms unusable for domestic repression, and to try to shift the issue under debate from whether arms should be sold to South Africa, to whether each Commonwealth member should be allowed to make sovereign decisions in its own right. Beyond that, he appears to be counting on the self-interest and diplomatic several days could be set aside for initiative of other Commonwealth members general debate on the state of the to keep them in it, regardless of the South African deal.

tieular foreign-policy aspect of the dilemma: the assumption that the Indian Ocean is in fact becoming an arena of big-power strategic competition, and that the Westeither the United States or Britain or South Africa or somebody—must enter into it. This is the assumption behind the Diego Garcia base decision, a decision for which no public justification has been offered, and it is the assumption behind the administration's discreet support of a Heath arms deal.

Once again it appears that the United States is looking too quickly and too much defense and social reconstruction, in the direction of a military solution to a political problem. There is no public evidence that this administration, or its predecessor, has tried such diplomatic avenues as, for instance, summoning a conference of Indian Ocean states and users, or talking about the matter with the Soviet Union. If the requirements of high strategy are not examined more critically than they have been in the past then the West will continue to feel itself forced to take steps offensive to its values-steps, moreover, of dublous ben-

Second, it enables the members to see the problems of say. in relation to one another before they begin dealing in committee with their special parts of the

The Congress of the United States doesn't debate the State of the Union message and the budget so much as it dismembers them. After some desultory observations for the press, often quite partisan in nature, the Congress will divide up the President's program and refer it to the various committees. There is no overall committee of the Congress that examines the President's total program or seeks outside testimony on how others see the state of the nation or the priorities of the budget. Nor is there any committee of the Congress that can keep the House and Senate within a spending limit and make the separate committees choose their priorities and relate their expenditures to a total the nation can afford. The result is that the United States is the only major nation in the world today whose cannot conduct a rational and predictable fiscal

China and the World

By supporting America's reluctance to give China her UN seat Britain is doing something which the Canadians, the Italians and the French have all abandoned. And Britain : risks missing the boat.

After a long period of withdrawal the Chinese are now coming back into the real world. Britain should recognize realities too. Is it fanciful to think that one day even the Americans might exchange ambassadors with Peking while Britain remains stuck with a petrified policy of no change?

The Polaroid Method

It is refreshing to find someone scorning vain gestures against apartheid in South Africa and challenging it on the only ground where it is vulnerable. More international firms controlling factories there should follow the example of the Polaroid Corporation policy. of America and insist on improving the salaries, opportunities and education of their non-white employees. Stennis's New Tune

A Vietnam Hawk's Sound of the Dove

By Murrey Marder

WASHINGTON (WP). - "1 think that the extent to which the Vietnam war problem was a civil war was not fully recognized in the beginning.' The speaker? Would you believe, Sen. John Stennis, D., Miss, charman of the Senate Armed Services Committee?

There was more. 'I totally reject the concept advocated from time to time." Sen. Stennis said, "that the President has certain toherent powers as commander in chief which enable him to extensively commit major forces to combat without congressional consent. As one senator, I am striving to help perfect a more realistic method that Congress shall use in providing explicit authority for the President to repel an attack, but requiring congressional authorization before hostllitles can be extended for an appreciable time."

SALT Begins To Go Back Over the Same Ground

By Chalmers M. Roberts WASHINGTON, (WP), - The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks now bave reached a point where history is repeating it-self, at least to the degree that it ever really does so. What is not at issue is whether it would be in the American interest to accept the Soviet proposal, made in December at the last SALT round in Helsinki, to start with an agreement only to limit rival anti-missile sys-

There are two points of repettive history involved. One has to do with switching of positions by Moscow and Washington. The other has to do with the old problem of whether half a loaf is better than none. As to the first, SALT originated from a proposal by former President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1966 to try for an ogreement with the Soviet Union on the limitation of rival ABM systems. Moscow's response was that ABMs were nnly defensive and that any meaningful arms agreement should cover both offensive and defensive nuclear weapons systems. It was on this latter basis that SALT began

Difficult Issues

More than a year of SALT has disclosed such difficult issues that the Russians, so they have said, suggested that the two superpowers try first for an agreement limited to defensive systems, that is, to ABM systems alone. In short, they seem ed to be agrecing to what Mr. Johnson had proposed four tears carlier.

Now the Nixon administration is resisting an ABM-only agreement on the grounds that in those four years, offensive Soviet power, especially the mas-sive SS-9 missile, bas grown so enormously that it must be curbed If any agreement is to be meaningful.

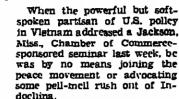

Some here suspect that the hang-up at SALT over the American refusal to include, at Soviet demand, the U.S. forward based systems (tactical alreraft in Western Europe and on carriers) is simply a Moscow device to force an ABM-only agreement. There is no doubt that Soviet negotiators have expressed great interest in forestalling the Installation of the American Safeguard ABM eystem. Mr. Nixon now knows that in the coming session of Congress there will be calls for accepting an ABM-only agreement. A number of outside experts already are on record for that say so shortly. Inside the administration, both the left and the right of the interminable arguments over the SALT talks currently appea- to be in substantial agreement that it would be a mistake to accept the Sovict proposal.

The Half-Loaf

This is the argument over half a loaf. It is said that the 88-93 are such a threat they must be curbed. They are unwilling to accept only the current Soviet halt in deployment, knowing it has halted before and could resume again. Furthermore, they expect the SS-9s to have MIRV warheads and improved guldance before long and the combination they see as too much of a threat to America's land-based Minuteman missiles, including the Minuteman-3s already with MIRV capability.

It is arguments such as these we will he hearing in Congress and within the administration in the coming weeks and Indeed, in the final hours of the last Congress, Sen. Stennis had made sure that proposed amendments to limit presidential actions in Cambodia. or clsewbere in the war zone, would not foreclose the President's authority to take whatever action he finds "reasonably necessary, within reasonable limitations of time," to protect U.S. troops.

Disengagement Sought

But Sen. Stennis, like the doves, wanted the course of U.S. policy to be disengagement, not escalation. More than that, Mr. Stennis, too, is saying "No more Vietnams," and he is indicating some readiness to go part of the way down the road with the Senate liberals to try to assure that result.

This new emphasis on Sen. Stennis's part does not represent a sudden or mass turnabout by those senators who have supported the Vietnam war-it is rather one step in an evolu-tionary process that has matcrialized during the agonizing years of the war. This evolution, while never so evident in public as the growing protest of those who opposed the war, is at least equally significant in the long run—if not more so.

The point at which the disaffection in hawkish ranks be-gan to reveal itself can be marked with considerable precision. It was on July 10, 1967. Sen, Richard B. Russell, D., Ga. the Senate's most prestigious member and Sen. Stennis's predccessor as Armed Services Committee chairman, served notice that the executive branch, in its readiness to commit forces abroad, had finally-in his view -gone too far.

The event he had in mind was the dispatch of three U.S. Mili-tary Air Transport planes and just over 100 men to the Congo. Mr. Russell, who usually riscs on the Senate floor mainly to support the use of American military power, suddenly registered his "earnest protest" against any involvement in the Congo.

Devoted to Defense

"Mr. President," he told a hushed Senate, "I have spent most of my career here in the Senate laboring and working to try to assure that the armed strength of these United States is sufficient to defend the people of this country—but I have not spent that time and effort striving to create forces that would be sent all over the world under such circumstances as those people are doing." "Senators might say: 'There are only about 100 of them-shout 60 Air Porce people and 45 paratroopers.' But Mr. President. Vietnam started out with a force not much larger than tbis... Sen. Stennis, commending Sen. Russell's wisdom, said. 'If we have not already learned a lesson by going in alone [in Vietnam] and getting unnecessarily involved on the other side of the world, we will never learn it."

Tha sudden line-drawing by Sen. Russell and Sen. Stennis. on what was quite a small matter in the Johnson administration's eyes, but the executive branch like a thunderbolt Because the Russells and the Stennises took the position that once U.S. power has been comsupported to sustain American honor, that warning did not then halt or impede the further increase of U.S. forces in Vietnam. But it was a danger flag flying over different involvements elsewhere.

Only those with long memories would recall that Sen. Russell, along with Lyndon B. Johnson, the Senate majority leader, in 1954 adamantly opposed major U.S. intervention in what was then the French Indochina war. Sen. Stennis, that year, in a series of Senale speeches, sounded like the doves of later years—he waru-ed that the United States was slipping, "inch hy inch," into war in Indochina without approval of the American people.

Back to '54 Stand

So, in a way, Sen. Stennis, last week in Jackson, was coming hack to where he had been in 1954 but recognizing now that the ability of the United States to wicid its power as it wished had diminished drastically in the intervening years. Sen. Stepnis declared. "The point I cannot too strongly emphasize is that those who have served in Vietnam should not feel their service has been in vain." He had come full circle, with a war and a severe challenge to American honor in

This is done in the name of common bumanity. But in the name of common humanity. how do white people manage to close their minds to the implications of tha resettlement policy while at the same time "opening their hearts" to its callous and inevitable results? In the second richest country in Africa, in the new decade of tha 20th century, choosing to manipulate the lives of a voteless and powerless indigenous majority in accordance with a theory of color preference, we in South Africa are reproducing the living conditions of 19thcentury European famine vic-tims allowed to labor under sufferance in another country. In a world with a vast refugee problem still unsolved from the iast world war and the lesser ones that have succeeded it, we who have never suffered the destruction of our own soil and cities have created encamp-ments of the people living like the homeless refugees of Palestine Blaira and Vietnam. Every human life, however humble it has been, has a context meshed of familiar experi-ence—social relationships, patterns of activity in relation to environment. Call it "home," if you like. To be transported out of this on a government truck one morning and put down in an uninhabited place is to be asked to build not on.y your shelter but your whola life over again, from scratch. For the hundreds of thousands of blacks who are having this experience forced upon them in South Africa there is no appeal. As for the whites-if hearts were ever really to be opened perhaps all wa should find would be, graven there, this comment from one of the inhabitants of a resettlement:

Nixon's Best Intentions Mired in Vietnam productive," as Army jargon would put it. ship on a progressive issue is

dent Nixon has repeatedly expressed his desire to put the United States in the forefront of the fight to improve the environment. But now that he has a real chance to contribute decisively to ecological progress on a worldwide scale, he seems to he contradicting his own The President's chance to prevent further environmental erosion lies in his interpretation of the 1925 Geneva Protocol prohibiting gas and bac-teriological warfare. After gathering dust for 45 years, the protocol will finally come up for Senate ratification soon. Even though he took the initiative in reviving the morihund protocol, the President has extracted some of its sharpest teeth by contending that it should not be construed to outlaw the chemical weapons that destroy vegetation. In other words, Nixon appears to hold that the direct use of modern scientific techniques to slaughter people is bad-but that indirectly killing or stunting them by obliterating their crops and other means of survival is acceptable.

Wreaked Havoc

The only visible motive the President could have for adopting this illogical position is his reluctance to concede in the face of all evidence that the defoliants and other herbicides have not only been militarily ineffective in Vietnam but have wreaked havor on the lives of thousands of innocent survivors in that benighted land. Once again, therefore, a chance for the United States to exercise international leaderbeing thwarted by its dismal commitment to Vietnam. Indeed, one of the only two countries that stands alongside the United States in refusing to ban chemical werfare is Por-tugal, which is using defoliants against guerrillas in Angola in an effort to maintain its colonia power there. Clearly, the White House is not in the hest of company. This was dramatically illustrated a year ago, when the UN General Assembly voted overwhelmingly to han chemical warfare. Because of its Vietnam involvement. only Australia stood in the three-nation minority with the United States and Portugal.

The inhuman impact of herhicides has been amply proved in Vietnam, where destructive spraying by U.S. aircraft has cut off about 600,000 civilians from normal food supplies. Most of these people arc mountain tribesmen, regarded by the Saigon regime to be an inferior Tace.

Defoliation of swamps has upset the ecological balance in many areas by destroying the spawning grounds for fish, a main protein staple in the Vietnamese diet. Large forest tracts have also been eliminated by defoliation, thereby ruining much of Vietnam's timber in-

After 60.000 tons of it were spread over Victnam, the use of a herbicide called "Agent Orange" was recently stopped when it was suspected of causing birth defects. But two other berhieides atill used are chemicals banned in the United States because of their high toxic con-

Corp., the U.S. Information Agency and the American mill-tary itself, have shown almost no correlation between crop-spraying and the enemy's ca-pacity to obtain food. Surveys of Vietnamese civil-lans indicate, however, that they blame herbicides for all kinds of real and imaginary ills. One peasant typically attributed his daughter's death to defoliation -even though defoliants were not used within 50 miles of his village. Platnly then, the political and psychological drawbacks of chemical warfare far outweigh their dubious military utility. And for that reason, Communist propaganda stresses the ravages of devolution.

Looking beyond Vietnam, the administration's decision to sidestep the ban on chemical weapons could prompt any little country with a miniature laboratory and a crop-dusting airplane to devastate its neighbor. For herbicides are about as easy to concoct as hair tonic. A quiet crusade to persuade the White House to reverse its stand on the Geneva Protocol is currently being led by a group of young State Department officials, all Vietnam veterans. But they are bucking the Pentagon, the chemical industry lobby and sheer bureaucratic inertia.

If they fail, the herbicide question could end up in the Senate as a partisan issue. The President still has the opportunity to block that possibility by broadening the interpretation of the protocol to put the United States into step with the rest of mankind.

some agents regarded Dan Ber-rigan's pursuit as a holy mis-sion. For Dan and his brother Philipp are very different from the Barry Fitzgerald at Notre Dame image of the Irish Roman Catholic priest. The Berrigan's full emergence as leaders of the militant Catholic left came in May, 1968. when they and seven others burned draft files in Catonsville. Md., and then voluntarily cave themselves up to the police. For this, both were sentenced to three years in prison. But In April, 1970, they did not turn themselves in to begin serving their sentences. Phil allowed himself to be caught ten days later, but Dan managed to remain fugitive for four and one-half months, giving interviews to newspapers and magazines and even preaching a sermon in a Philadelphia church before the FBI caught up with him on Block Island Dan Berrigan explained his decision to become a fugitive this way: "The courts have become more and more the instruments of the war-makers. Can Christians, therefore, unthinkingly submit before such powers? We judge not." But even underground, the Berrigans rejected the violent posture of much of the new left. "The ratio of despair and violence in the movement is in direct proportion, to the absence of growth of spirit," Dan said.

Thus, when J. Edgar Hoover, the FBI director, told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee last November that Dan and Phil had led a plot to kidnap a White House aide, many people regarded the allegations as another chapter in the bureau's continuing feud with the Berrigans or an attempt to wheedle funds from the senators by scaring them.

These skeptics noted that Mr. Hoover had revealed the plot while asking Congress for $14.5 million to provide 1.000 additional agents, that he provided little detail and no supporting evidence and, most important, that no indictment had been brought. So there was some astonishment in radical-liberal circles last Tuesday, when a federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., handed down indictments of six persons, including Philip Berrigan, on charges of conspir-acy to kidnap Henry Kissinger, assistant to the President for national security affairs, and to blow up the heating systems of federal buildings in Washington. Dan Berrigan was among seven other persons who were named as co-conspirators, but were not indicted. In a statement issued from prison, the Berrigans called the charges a "fabrication by the government" designed to "destroy the peace movement." But in the peace movement's ranks, the indictment stirred some doubts amidst the indignation. Could the Berrigans actually contemplate kidnapping and the use of explosives? Until the government presents its evidence, one can deal only in probabilities, and there are some on each side of the question. Among those pointing in the negative:

and the Over-the-Counter market scored hig gains last week, the fourth consecutive week that both markets advanced.

Brokers noted that they were particularly pleased with the performance of the Counter market and attributed it to the steadily increasing participation by the general public. However, they stressed that the growing interest by small investors in the Counter issues is still of modest proportions and is concentrated mostly in quality issues. In commenting on this, one broker said. 'Let's hope they suddenly don't go wild and start buying the cats and dogs,"

The better performance of the market was reflected in the exchange's price index, which ended on Friday at 23.52, up 0.42 shares in the preceding week.

The National Quotation Bureau's index of 35 industrial issues traded Over-the-Counter climbed 13.17 points to end the week at 380.13. This was the indicator's biggest weekly rise in months.

Among the better gainers in the Counter market, Tampax soured 7; Cosmetically Yours gained 35/8; Alexander & Alexander climbed 3 1/2; Alpex Computer was up 4 1/4; First Boston Corp. rose 25/8; Gaynor-Stafford, Inc. advanced 21/2 and Brenco, Inc.

Reserve Board sent most of the bank issues higher in very active trading. Pittsburgh National was up 3; the National Bank of Detroit gained 21/2; Fidelity Corp. of Pennsylvania added 2 and

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (NYT).—The American Stock Exchange

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (NYT). The rising tide of support for some form of government inter-vention to control inflation swelled last week after sharp price increases on several key construction products were announced by the Bothlehem Steel Although the nation's second largest steel producer indicated it felt amply justified in raising base prices by more than 12 percent because of its sorely depressed profit situation, the price action was quickly denounced publicly by the White House and privately by many other commentators, And yesterday, the nation's top producer, U.S. Steel, said it was raising prices by 6.3 percent on major construction products.

As the business week ended

oo Friday, it was uncertain what the next move in the wellwatched chess game would be, hut the ultimate outcome seemed to be assured, and it would he thit: More "jawboning" by the administration to bead off excessively high price and wage increases plus tougher actions to implement the vocalizing than those taken in the lumber, copper and oil price actions in the last two years.

Fear of Exacerbation

Critics complained that the steel-price increases jeopardized hopes for any significant im-provement this year in the hattle to curh cost-push inflation and would tend to harden steel labor's posture in wage bargaining this summer.
One observer noted that there was hope-and some evidencearound the middle of last year that the pace of price inflation was ebbing s hit, but was quickening again toward the year's end. And compensation per man-hour in the private economy was increasing at a rapid 7.6 percent annual rate in the third quarter of 1970, the latest period reported.

The fear now is that steelprice increases could exacerbate the whole price-wage situation.

While the steel-price controversy occupied center stage last week in the economic theater, there were other important happenings in the wings.

President Nixon, displaying his activist economic strategy, played a principal role in the leading acts, first anthorizing a new system of depreciation allowances to help business step up its capital spending to aid

Meanwhile, there were these other highly significant developments: a reduction in mort-gage-rate ceilings on federally backed home loans to 7 1/2 percent from 8 percent; the first rise in the nation's industrial production since last summer: another 1.4 percent cut in the prime rate; a reduction of 2 5,8 cents a pound on copper, and a $5.2 billion jump in personal

The charge of "double standard"-of producing cars for the domestic market less safe than those exported to the United States—is not new, but Mr. Nader's accusation, made at a news conference here, and documented in a long open letter to Mr. Sato, is certain to add fuel to the long contro-

Nader asked the Japanese government to recommend legislation that would bring Japanese safety standards closer to those of the United States Instead of defining a safety defect only as a problem capable of causing a fatality or a fire, he suggested the Japanese follow the American example in labeling as defective anything likely to cause "loss of vehicle control, fire, property damage (: any type of crash."

John N. Irwin 2d, who is on a U.S. oil mission to the Middle East.

The supplies of oil at stake are vital for much of the Western world, if not for the United States. Europe draws 75 percent of its crude oil from the Middle East and North Africa, while 90 percent of Japan's oil comes from this area. The American dependence is only 3 percent.

The possibility of nationaliza-tion is not taken seriously by oilmen. They do not believe the Arab countries will risk the oil revenues that provide their economic mainstay. However, supplies could be interrupted or curtailed to apply pressure in negotiations, which could bave serious results for the West's

There should be further evidence of economic expansion

as the first quarter rolls along. Somewhat surprisingly, the highly dramatic developments in the world of finance, business and economics last week were not transformed into any electrifying currents in the stock market, though some of them did help to maintain the bright glow in the bond and credit markets. The most significant, aspect of the stock market's per-formance was the heavy volume

N.Y. Stocks Are Firm, Volume Is Heavy of trading rather than the dimension of price changes. Heavy institutional activity and reinvestment by the public pushed average daily turnover on the New York Stock Exchange to approximately 17 mil-liou shares, comfortably higher than the 12 million break-even

Price changes were small each day and, on balance, were up-ward. The rising course of the last two months was thus maintained without any real correction so far. In that period, the Dow Jones industrial stock average has advanced from the 750 area to a recovery high near 845. The index is well above the 631 level touched last May when the market was sinking to a seven-and-a-half-year low With the Federal Reserve and the major commercial banks taking additional steps to make credit easier to obtain, the money and capital markets boomed last week, showing as much, or perhaps more, strength than they exhibited in explosive action last

Interest rates in the market dropped sharply, and prices of fixed-income securities soared. New bond issues sold quickly as investors rushed to put their further.

The reaction to the new the administration said it had put into effect retroactively to Jan. 1 was generally favorable, but not wildly enthusiastie. in the business world and less sanguine elsewbere.

The stock market scored gen-money to work before rates fell erally moderate gains on a broad front last week in the second heaviest trading on Volume for the week on the New York Stock Ex-change totalled 87.2 million which was 5 million under the record. All the averages ended in higher territory as 1,315 stocks advanced, 387 declined and 109 closed unchanged for the pe riod. New highs for 1970-71 were reached by 409 issues and new lows by only three,

The Dow Jones industrial stock average rose 8.69 points to 845.70, Standard & Poor's 500-index rose 0.84 to 93.03 and the Stock Exchange composite was up 0.70 to 51.16.

The continuing decline in interest rates made Federal National Mortgage Association the most active issue last week as it rose 4 points to 61 1/2 on turnover of 862,000 shares.

Eurobonds

(Continued from Page 7) locations on new issues have moved their buying even further down the coupon range on the secondary market. Having moved into the 7 percent coupon bonds trading at a discount, they are showing up in such issues as Caisse Nationale des Télécommunications 6 3/4s due 1982, which jumped three points in the week to 90 1/2.

At the same time, the ques-tion of sinking funds is coming to the fore. For example, the fund on the Caisse Nationale bonds issued in 1967 starts in November this year, which will retire $1.5 million worth of the debentures at par. That could start making such issues interesing to someone who buys at a discount in the hope of a quick capital gain.

On the other hand, some recently-floated issues, the Essos, for example, had sinking funds coming into operation in their first year, so there is some risk of having bonds bought at present high premiums redeemed at per. Thus, some price softening and some professional shifting out of the recent issues trading at high premiums has become noticeable.

Those looking for some sort of respite from the rate game got food for thought from the U.S. Export-Import Bank (Ex-imbank) announcement Friday night that it will raise up to $1 billion in Eurodollars from U.S. banks' foreign branches at

by this, Industry sources interpreted it to mean, however. that the company merely told the White House in advance what the size of the planned increases would be, and did not seek to learn what the administration considered an "acceptable" increase.

The products involved are as pilings, structural shapes and carbon-steel plates. The increases, effective March 1, were, in broad terms, $11 a ton on H-pilings, $10 a ton on most structural shapes, $12 a ton on plates and $9 a ton on sheet pilings.

No changes were scheduled on extra charges for such services as special sizing and handling. The company indi-cated that this was important because it meant that "while the effect of the change is a 6.8percent increase in proceeds from the products affected, it centage increase in customers' delivered costs."

The three-month notes will not count against the banks' reserve-free base—that is, the banks can subscribe with new money but not have to put aside the 20 percent obligatory under present Pederal Reserve Board regulations.

Apparently U.S. authorities have become sensitive enough to European charges of exporting inflation, balance-of-payments deficits and interference with domestic European monetary policies, to make a gesture on offsetting the rapid unwinding of Eurodollar positions.

BLONDIE ABOUT

By Alan Truscott

South opened one heart, reckoning that his distributional power compensated for his shortage of high cards, and West made a preemptive jump to four spades with a shorter spade suit than one would expect for such a bid.

North's jump at this point to six hearts was not nearly as foolish as it might appea at first sight. West's four-spade bid made likely from North's angle that his partner was short in spades, and also greatly increased the chance that South held a long, strong heart suit.

Another factor in North's favor was that all his high cards were outside the spade suit, and were therefore "working" and it was likely that South's points were "working" also. They were, but there were only nine of them.

Against six hearts West led two rounds of spades and South ruffed. He led a heart to the queen followed by the heart five to draw trumps.

East made a common mistake at this point: he split his honors with the idea that this would guarantee him a trick. If he had played low in the normal way, South would have needed considerable flair to finesse the nine, even with the indication from the bidding that West was likely to be short in hearts.

East's play of a heart hon-or would have been perfectly safe if the dummy had been entryless. As it was, South was given an opportunity to make the slam, but he did not take

The only hope was to trap the jack with a trump coup. After taking the heart ten with the king, South should have led to the club ace and played the queen ruifing out East's king. The play then would be to take the ace and and king of diamonds and continue

If East ruffs at any point, South overruffs, draws the last trump and makes his dismond winners. If not, the lead remains in dummy at the 12th trick, and East's heart jack is trapped in a comp position.

AMERICA AND RUSSIA AN A CHANGING WORLD

A Half-Century of Personal Observation . By W. Averell Barriman. Doubleday. 218 pp. $5.25

contacts with the Soviet Union, which began with a business deal in 1926; W. Averell Harriman is able to take a long, historical view of our relations with that prickly country. The result is a cautionary volume: coolly reasonable, moderate in tone and practical in outlook. It is in its way pragmatism in its purest form. That doesn't meso that the author has no feelings about the Soviet Union. its : oppressive : practices or dehumanizing culture. He says quickly that the Bolshevik Revoductry that the Bosnevic Eleve-lution, that been on balance a tragic step backward in human development. That standing in moral judgment of the Russlans is easy; working out a way to live with them is the difficulty. Those who see red when the Soviet Union is men-tioned may find Harriman's tempered and imemotional approach frustrating and provok-ing. It may be then that this book is not for them. Then again it may be. For it will reduce the size of the threat they feel is immiffent and prove that if we are clear-eyed and free of self-delusion, we are not without resources to counter it.

The thesis of the book roughthe thesi of the book roughly is that politics is the art of the possible. That is why among other reasons, he is sharp in his criticism of John Poster Dulles with his talk of massive retaliation and his hint to the nations of Eastern En-.; rope that at the sign of an up-rising we would gather our forces and assure liberation of those countries from the Soviet Union. Such action, short of allout war, was simply not feasible and he thought it cruel and irresponsible of Dulles to say os. This is not to be interpreted as appeasement. Harriman applauds the Truman measures that kept Greece free of Communist domination after World War II and he approves of the help we gave Turkey. Interestingly, he cites the warning to the Soviet Union of one highly placed Turkish official that Turkey was quite willing to fight if it were invaded. And he thinks that attitude may be responsible for the reasonably quiet border that exists between those two countries.

He believes that we did well in intervening in Korea. The North Rorean armies, he feels, were trained by the Russians. and the signal for the attack came from them: Stalin wanted a base in South Korea that could make him a menacing force-to Japan, since he had been denied such a position by e Am Japanese islands. But in his practical way Harriman does not think we should have gone above the 38th Parallel when we had the North Koreans recling. For what he saw then was not North Kores but the endless land and people of China. That would have been Vietnam raised to infinity.

His many contacts with the Soviet leaders beginning with was carefree in those days and at these famous alumni a o d decided that It would be great fun to assemble in the open air on lovely autumn Saturday afternoons and get drunk and sing the school fight song. Unfortunately, there was no reasonable excuse to do so until a bright undergraduate ooe dsy filled a leather bag with air, challenged another undergraduate to stop him from carrying the thing to the end of a clesred area, and invented football.

Soon the richest and most muscular eggheads in the country were playing football. Each Saturday in the glorious New England and New Jersey fall the sounds of Boola Ecola" and "Hold That Tiger" could be heard miogling with the clank of hip flasks.

At Yale. Frank Merriwell invented Old Eli, and Princetou replied with Old Nassau. Old Granddad. Okl Crow and Old Jack Daniel, In no time at all Walter Camp had invented the All-America team.

Frankly, except for the idea of filling the leather bag with air, none of the contributions which this period made to football were of any value at all. Anybody who has ever watched Yale play Harvard could have told you fifty years ago that it would take something better than that to anestbetize sixty million Americans

Women in Japan Have Only Paper Equality

By John Roderick

The Turkey Day classic was a left-over from football's dim monial occasions, many of age, when the last or "climactic" them have minds, jobs and careers of their own. game was played When, at Bastogne, the Nazis pointed out that it was im-proper for the Americans to hold the field because Turkey

Of the female population of 52.1 million, 20.4 million have jobs. Many are secretaries, textile workers, department store clerks, teachers, nurses, leath-er workers, food processors. In electronie plants where R fine eye and a delicate touch count more than brswn, and in the nation's schools, they predomi-

They are active in politics, donning the helmets and staves of the extremist student protest groups, running for the Diet toarliaments and provincial and local assemblies. They join women's consumer committees which tackle the high cost of living and the monopoly practices of blg manufacturers.

And, of course, they are alone in the art of entertaining tired businessmen, either as B trained Geisha or a sympathetic bar hostess.

They have come a long way since British scholar Basil Hall Chamberlain wrote in 1904: "Japauese women are most womsnly - kind, gentle, faithful, pretty. But the way in which they are treated by men has hitherto beeo such as might cause a pang to any generous European heart. No wonder that some of them are at least endeavoring to emancipate them-

The women of Chamberlain's day in Japan groaned under the yoke of obedience-"obedience. while yet unmarried, to a father; obedience, when married, to a husband and that husband's parents: obedience, when wldowed, to a son."

From 1909 to the end of World War II, a woman's lot in Japan was not a happy one. Discriminated against, working long hours, uusble to be heard in her own defense, she was among the most miserable women on earth.

Japan's defeat lp the war ironically was a landmark in the struggle of its women to gain equality. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Allied occupation administration put through a constitution which contained guarantees more generous than those in many Western constitutions.

It directed the enactment of laws giving women equality with men in property rights, inheritance, choice of domicile, divorce and other matters.

Yoko Matsuoka, a graduate of Pennsylvania's Swarthmore College, heads the only women's liberation movement of any consequence. The 54-year-old author, a sharp critic of American policles, claims her group has a membership of about 1,-000. But their thrust is more political than social, conceptrating more on opposing the American presence in Japan and Vietnam than on achieving women's rights.

She insists this is the only effective approach and dismisses the various women'; consumer groups and other organizations as too narrowly political.

Her reasoning is that once the U.S. influence is removed, the chance of fighting militarism, which she sees as the real prob-lem, will improve. The militarists, she says, would set back the women's movement overnight, revising the constitution and clamping down on abortions in order to provide more cannon fodder for growing armies.

The main discrimination is a disparity in salary between men and women. The Labor Ministry reports that women get 1.5 times less than their male colleagues.

In 1969, the average yearly income of the nation's 31,150,000 employed men out of a total male population of 50,280,000 was $2,550; women got $1,200, retary: "This is deplorable. Career women should receive the same pay for the same jobs. However, still a great num-ber of women do not consider jobs as their careers. In fact, they work for a few years to fill the vacant time between graduation from schools and marriage. As long at this kind of thinking exists, it would be difficult to achieve the goal of equal pay for equal jobs." Another area of discrimina

No matter how able they may be, women seldom rise to ex-ecutive positions in Japan's male-dominated privata indus-

Collectively, Japanese women are making themselves felt. They have been formed into legal affairs study groups, to protect their rights in the marketplace. A consumers' group has shaken the powerful radio television industry, calling for a boycott of color television purchases until prices are brought down to U.S. export

Not all the other housewives who stay home are engaged solely in housework. In one out of eight families, women work from four to six hours a day turning out tiny components for large factories. Miss Matsuoka says they earn little more than $14 a month. They have none of the protection of the law, get none of the muchpublicized recreation bonus or retirement benefits of organized Newspaper critic Tsugi Shiraishi says Japanese women are envious of American women, with consideration and polite-ness. She suggests and who are treated by their men She suggests and undoubtedly is right—that this is less true in Japan.

"Japanese women-who have been subordinate for centuriesare happy to have gained literal equality though in reality they are not equal. Perhaps some pioneer women leaders like the oldtime suffragettes of pre-war days are needed to stage a similar movement as in the

PEOPLE:

The latest claimant to tha 20-billion-lire ($32 million) fortune left by former London callgirl car Engenio Messina has been recognized as his only legitimata son. Antanio Masi. 40, father of two and a clerk at the U.S. South European Task Force (SETAF) headquarters in Vicenza, Italy, had been sentenced in December to seven months in fall on charges of misusing the Messina name, a verdict which Masi immediately appealed. On Friday, however the Vicenza Municipal Registry upheld Masi's conten-tion that he was born Giuseppe Messins in Alexandria, Egypt, in 1930, when a legitimate hirth certificate was introduced as evidence. Giuseppe's late mother. it turns ont, had had the child's name charged after his father

The news came as a blow to Eugenio's brothers, Attilio and Salvatere, and his sister, Mar-gherita, who had expected to slice up the fortune among them. Eugenio had died in plush retirement in San Remo on March 12, 1970, just 12 hours after he had married his exsecretary, Marie Therese Verszeka. The three siblings were seeking an annulment of the marriage, claiming that the bride was married to Englishman William George Smith at the time of her union with Eugenic. Should the claim prove invalid, she now could win the right to the usufruct of 50 percent of Giuseppe's inheritance. Tax authorities, meanwhile, were also seeking to determine whether Gluseppe is Italian or British, since his father was born in Malta.

Remadette Devlin, Northern Ireland's 23 - year - old. political. firebrand and the youngest member of Britain's Parliament has abandoned the idea of writing a book about her life in jail, literary agent Patrick Scale announced in London. Miss Devlin had planned a book about the four months she spent in Armagh Prison last aummer for inciting riots in Ulster, but Seale said: "Life in prison isn't that interesting There's a limit to the interest you can get out of the diet and knitting a mmi-skirt."

BORN: Jacqueline Beth Christian, the first baby born in more than a year on Pitcairn Island, whose population was thus swelled to 93. Jacqueline is the great-great-great-granddaughter of Fleteher Christian, who rebelled against Capt. William Bligh during a voyaga from Tahiti to England and led a band of mutineers from the Bounty to the island on Jan. 15, 1790. The island is now populated solely by the descendants of Christian, eight other mutineers and their Poly-Desian wives. REJECTED: A request by Belgian actress Catherine Spaak for custody of Sabrina, her 6-year-old daughter from a broken marriage with Italian actor Fabrizio Capucci. A Rome court ruled that there was no reason to take Sabrina away from Capucci's mother. who was given custody when the couple separated by mutual consent eight month after the girl's birth. QUITTING: Dr. John McKendrick, 35, as resi-dent obstetrician at St. Peter s Hospital in Chertsey, England, because of the hospital's refusal to allow fathers to watch the birth of their children. It is the basic right of a man to see his child being brought into the world," said McKendrick. "It is an immensely rewarding experience." As to charges thus the father gets in the way, the doctor said: "The father is, if anything, useful because be helps a mother relax."
